

1. Man is not on his way to extinction.
2. The offense was not intentional.
3. Pictures that demand no effort from the reader.
4. One day in the distant future the name of Shakespeare will evoke no response on this earth.
5. If we work all the time our nervous systems cannot stand the strain.
6. The sale of more than two million copies is by no means a startling phenomenon.
7. No figure of ancient Greece is better known than Homer.
8. Phones go unanswered, meals uneaten, while we linger in the spell of a master story-letter.
9. The gain was too high to hold and Sterling soon slipped back to its former level.
10. Clearly these children are not going to die.
11. The March to Utopia will not be easy.
12. She wasn't going to conceal that she had talked of it to Wilson-not she!
13. If Mr. Gladstone hadn't broken up the Liberal Party you would have.
14. It is not a mere accident that bloody incidents recur in South Africa
15. It was not because he has a beard that Mr X was hired.
16. The order pleased hardly anyone.
17. He sits not a dozen yards away.
18. Never perhaps was a young man freer from thought and influence of money than he.
19. Nobody has any sort of fault to find with him.
20. This is no longer possible.
21. I am scarcely in a position to form an opinion.
22. This can hardly be doubted.
23. Speculative markets have not been idle.
24. There is no disputing the fact that the reading market, we can hardly say the literary market is flooded.
25. I hardly know what the word is derived from.
26. He wished to know nothing.
27. She did not suppose that she could ever see again this companion of a few hours.
28. Clara did not think that it mattered.
29. He did not seem to have changed.
30. Mr. X is no where formidable, he is no root -and-branch reformer, and neither has he apparently any fads.
31. None of us is perfect.
32. None but the brave deserve the fair.
33. None of the children in his class, are bored with the lesson.
34. None so blind as those who will not see.
35. How many fish did you catch. None.
36. I wanted some more coffee but there was none left.

37. Not a word more could I draw from him.
38. He discovered not only the method of the crime, but even its motives.
39. "I don't wonder that you are surprised" said she.
40. I really think I should have fainted if I had not gone out.
41. But my emotions were nothing to those which showed themselves upon her face when our eyes met.
42. I implore you not to do this, Jack.
43. I trust that you don't consider your collection closed?
Not at all. I should wish nothing better than to have some more of such specimens.
44. He could hardly find the stamps to answer the advertisements.
45. You are very much too good to be a clerk.
46. I hardly know how to express my gratitude.
47. Of course you expect two brothers to be alike, but not that they should have the same tooth stuffed in the same way.
48. We hardly drew another word from him until we were in New Street.
49. Their muskets seemed not to be loaded.
50. He had been seen by no one since he had retired to his room the night before. I
51. t was incredible to me that he could have gone away.
52. He had been dead some days, but there was no wound upon his person.
53. Then, if it is necessary, we can go into my room. It is not too much trouble.
54. The inspector said nothing.
55. This vindictiveness, however, appears not to have been turned towards his wife.
56. The maids were too distracted with fear to be of any assistance.
57. Nothing else was discovered, nor in any parts of the room was the missing key to be found.
58. That third person could only have come in through the window.
59. She would have fallen down had her brother not caught hold of her.
60. He has only been five days in the place.
61. If I had knocked him down, he would have had no more than his due from my hand.
62. He never had occasion to regret his speculation.
63. I can hardly hope so.
64. He has played a not unimportant part in htis drama.
65. The club contains the most unsocialbe men in town.
66. He had not left the military service long.
67. You had better never have been born.
68. Ill-nourished children.
69. "It does not tell us very much , does it ?"
70. My uncle had been guilty of no exaggeration in what the had said.
71. "Has no one else passed ?" No one.
72. He seemed to represent that not too uncommon type.
73. He is not at all happy.
74. He is not altogether happy. It is impossible to guess whether he is satisfied or not.