

The general rule is that any is used for questions and negatives while some is used for positive. Both may be used with countable and uncountable nouns.

Complete the sentences with some or any :

- 1 – Have you got any brother or sister ?
- 2 – we don't need any olive or oil .
- 3 – Her are some letters for you .
- 4 – I need some Money .
- 5 – Is there any petrol in the car ?

(much/many)

The difference between many and much is that many is used for countable and plural nouns, whereas much is used for uncountable and singular nouns

Complete the sentences with much or many .

- 1 – Have you got much Homework ?
- 2 – We don't need many eggs . Just half a dozen
- 3 – Is there much traffic in your town ?
- 4 – I don't know many students in this class ?
- 5 – How many people live in your house ?

Complete the sentences with the a little , a few or a lot of

1 - I have a few close friends . Two or three .

2 – He has a lot money . He’s a Millionaire .

3 – Do you take sugar in coffee ? “ Just a little “

4 – Have you got a lot CDs ? ‘ Hundreds ‘

5 – I’ll be ready in a few minutes .

6 – She speaks good Spanish, but only a little Russian

Use a lot for uncountable nouns (e.g., jam, time) to indicate many, or a large number.

*Use a little for uncountable nouns to indicate a small number

*Use a few if the noun is countable

something/someone/somewhere

We use someone / somebody / something / somewhere in the same way as some and we use anyone / anybody / anything / anywhere in the same way as any.

We use somebody / something / somewhere mainly in positive sentences.

- We can find somebody who can help.

-There's something in the bag

Complete the sentences with the correct word

1 - Did you meet anyone nice at the party ?

'Yes . I met someone who knows you '

2 - ' Ouch! there's something in my eye !'

Let me look. No I can't see anything .

3 - 'Let's go somewhere for our holiday '.

But we can't go anywhere that's too expensive .

4 - I'm so unhappy . nobody loves me 'Couldn't find them.

5 - I lost my glasses. I looked everywhere but I couldn't find them.

6 - Did you buy anything at the shops ?

No, nothing . I didn't have any money .'

7 - I'm bored. I want something interesting to read, or someone interesting to talk , or somewhere interesting to go .

8 - It was a great party . everyone loved it .